Another position from the knee cut, and this is really common to happen as well, sometimes when people are there on your knee cut and they are feeling threatened, they are going to try to do a step back going for the inverted half guard to try to pass your guard and we are going to try to counter that, we are going to try to take their back from there. So, you are here on the knee cut, and I got a very good position here, I am having the lapel and everything, but then, once I am like this, my opponent is going to try to do a step back, and once he does that, I am going to open my leg like this, so it is very important that I move my knee up his knee, ok, right now my leg is below his knee, so go back there John, see, because of the knee cut, it is obvious, his knee is higher than my leg, but when this happens, I need to correct that, so he is going to go for that again, I am going to open here, and as I do this, I am going to control here his arm, I am going to hug his back, I am going to move my leg up, now, I am going to try to extend him forward, I am going to go back, to take his back like this, ok, so I am going to do it this way here now, it is going to be the knee cut, like this, and then, he is feeling threatened and everything, he is going to try, even if I have my knee like this, if I have my knee down like that, he is going to try to go for my back, I am going to stop him by opening my legs like this, very wide open, ok, now I move my leg up, and then from here, I can just like, hip escape, hip escape and try to go for his back, or I can just push him forward in order to take the back, ok, now we are going to do on this side here, just so you can see how I work with my leg, Kajanta is going to come here, so I am like this, maybe they want to avoid when I am pushing here, and come on top like that, so they want to step back, so once we are here, Jaga is going to try to step back, I am going to try to stop him here, making a hook behind his leg, ok, and I hug him like this, now, my goal is, if I cannot pass my leg over there anymore, so let's turn, so now look how his leg is, I could not pass my leg over, no problem, so what I am going to do, I am going to hold here his gi, now as I am having a hook here, I am going to kick him forward, then I am going to come on top, always looking for the back, now I am going to put my hook inside, and I am going to take the back again, so one more time on this side, so I am like this, he is going to try to do a back take, step back, I am going to come here, now, as his knee is already all the way through, and I was not able to bring my leg on top of his knee, I am just going to start kicking him forward, like this, I am going to come on top, control, and take his back, ok, so, we already got some sweeps from there, right, we are not covering sweeps on this DVD, but there are tons of sweeps that you can do there, but also now, back takes from this very common situation, which is the knee cut as well, that we did.
