

back. Okay, right versus right situation. We're here in front of our training partner. I offer up a free gift to my training partner. Okay, so I come out right versus right. I notice, yep, kinky, sorry, IL2 situation. I give an offering. From the offering, I go through and grip. I use that to take my opponent's foot forward. As a result, we're in perfect position to go straight on him and lock. Now, as I come up off the floor, we're in good position to get to our single leg. From the single leg, I walk to bring his foot in towards me. I don't want to stay here forever because he's got belt and I don't have control of his head this time. So this is not the time to be delaying. I walk back and draw his leg in towards me. As a result, we're in perfect position to level change, lock, put our man down to the mat. So once again, IL2 situation. I give an offering. I go through, Roman salute, and pull. There's my leg. Grip, pull. Now, I go straight on in and lock. I come up off the floor. Don't want to delay too much this time because I've given him belt exposure. Okay. I step to bring him in. Then I just drop and reach out for the lock double. So simple. Great way to get to a leg. IL2 situation. Fake, offering. Grip, move, and pull. Everything comes down, we lock. We come up off the floor. We've got it. When I release, I don't want to wait forever. So as I release, I'm walking backwards already. I pendulum down, lock, and put him down to the floor. Very simple. Very effective.
