All right, guys, we already deal with some elbows here, some strategies on how to deal with that. One very, very, very important move to do is like, well, what if the guy start really achieving the elbowscape? What's the next step? So you remember, you have to think about to let the guy start, but don't let him finish. So we let the move begin, but don't let him finish. But sometimes the guys on the board is very pretty good, very persistent, and he can start digging the elbowscape, and you notice the elbowscape's gonna work. You know, we call this, it's a very good idea for you to think about windshield wiper. So when I start feeling the elbows gonna escape here, I just come here, look, and I hide my leg, and I make a little hook right down there. So I let my opponent do the elbowscape here, but when he's gonna do the elbowscape, he's not gonna find my leg. So when Dave start doing, keep doing the elbowscape, look at that, he push back, he push back, and I let it go, and I keep my foot on the ground underneath of his leg here, so I never lose this. From here, I can control his elbow, and I can drive him again, I drive him again, I drive, drive, drive, drive, I hide my left leg first. I hide it, when my left leg is hidden, my left foot, I keep this control here. What I'm gonna do, I'm gonna go forward, I'm gonna twist it, put my foot on the ground flat, because over there, Dave's gonna try to catch my foot there. It's gonna be flat. When I see the chance, what I'm gonna do, I'm gonna retrieve this, I'm gonna rotate my foot, and I'm gonna put the frog feet there. When he tries to catch again, it's gonna be pretty hard, and I already have this control here. So, one more time, from a different angle. Let's go back over here, please. So, we go from here, we go, windshield wiper, I let it go, I catch. When he come towards me, I block over there, I just block the bottom leg. I keep driving forward, driving forward, and I hide my left leg underneath of his femur. So, when I'm over here, I wanna try to mount, I go a little bit forward, I twist it, and I go right under his knee over there, and I make the frog feet again. So, the key for me is to always control his legs and go underneath of the leg over there. And that's another very good, called the windshield wiper.
