all right the next transition is the buggy scarecrow triangle super cool let's do this it doesn't have to be but just because for me i do a lot of close grab and sometimes it's easy for me get on this setup here but then i kind of get stuck on the middle here because the guy if he gets close to me it's hard for me to pass this way so once again we're gonna have some kind of hand fighting here but in this time instead of holding his wrist because the wrist is much more attractive when i want to post my leg here and let him put to the other side but when i want to win the battle instead of hold the wrist i like to hold here like on the hand when you hold the hand it's super hard the guy to roll the hand like i try to roll the hand so it's super hard when i hold the wrist it's kind of easy you know free you see but when you hold the hand it's kind of hard for him try to try to do to roll your hand so that's what we do you know when the guy tried to roll the hand usually he he bring it like he push it and he give me the chance to lock him on the square crow so it's possible to finish the guy here no it's like a triangle choke i don't know if i do it's okay if i do it it feels like a yeah well i don't i don't like this much i like much more the transition because now when you have this one here you keep him on the square crow shoot the triangle and now it's just a matter of closing here okay one thing that i like to say the triangle because the guy already have this arm here on that side and i know that some people would say no just pass the arm to the other side here i do prefer to keep the arm here and why i'm saying that because if i try to pass this arm to the other side there's a chance the guy lock here in here and it's super difficult to finish the triangle once the guy do this so because i have the guy the arm of the guy on this side here i just keep where i lock hold my shin underneath his arm and squeeze from here so let's go from the beginning here i am broke his force hold my shin body right hand fight hold the hand the moment the guy try to retrieve i lock the square crow i can even change the hand to the other one when i feel i can pass my leg i do it let go lock the triangle now underneath his arm i can hold my shin i can hold his head i do prefer to hold my shin and squeeze i do this in my real time broke his coast and that was our bug to skycrow to the triangle you
